Presentation/Discussion to Doctoral Students and other interested researchers on April 5th

Postal Access: Current State of the Science and Open Questions

Paul R. Kleindorfer
Anheuser-Busch Professor of Management Science (Emeritus)
The Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania
Distinguished Research Professor
INSEAD, Fontainebleau

This presentation and discussion is intended for doctoral students interested in the current state of the literature on access pricing, with special attention to the issues associated with the postal sector. I will start with a brief summary of the literature and what I view to be some of the important open questions. I look forward to an interesting exchange of ideas. To avoid spending too much time on preliminaries, it would be good if participants would read the De Donder paper before the presentation.